

Listening for Life Centre Sculpture Competition 1st July 2009

HDP ran a Sculpture Competition with Bradford Girls' Grammar School to celebrate the opening of the Listening for Life Centre at the Bradford Royal Infirmary. Some of the HDP team and representatives from The Ear Trust Charity chose the winning entry.

The chosen sculpture, designed by Amber Thiara, was called "The Quartet". Design & Technology staff at the school constructed the Sculpture with the help of sponsorship from Sovereign Health Care and it was installed by HACS construction in June. Chris Reign, Chairman of The Ear Trust, officially unveiled the masterpiece in July where it was very well received. Please select the photo to see T&A Article.
